RECEIVERSHIP

When citizens, land owners and representatives of large interests petitioned the commissioners of Everglades drainage district for action to relieve the flood that was approaching, the answer to the petition in effect was, "Can't do anything—no money."

Not many months before, when the Miami-Hialeah and Davie areas were flooded and demand was made for appropriations for relief, the appropriations were made promptly.

If Everglades drainage district was broke that it could not provide fund in as pressing an emergency as existed in West Palm Beach canal territory, then why should not a receiver take charge of the district?

A receivership seems to provide a method of getting money for necessary work in drainage districts. Here is an instance of it, in this report of action taken in a federal court at Miami:

Authorization to cover $50,000 from the sinking fund, to construct a canal outlet, construct a spillway and to acquire land in the Miami-Dade drainage district, was given by Judge Hialeah L. Dwyer in United States district court at the request of the Miami-Dade drainage district. Mr. Davidson said citrus groves and other lands in the district were being damaged by the water unless the bondholders agreed to the plan.

Reports from Tallahassee printed in many papers say Everglades drainage district has borrowed all the money it can from the trustees of the internal improvement fund and that the district will owe $272,000 interest and $125,000 principal July 1.

Successful floods have run farmers out of their homes, re-located or stopped the operations of big developers and caused hundreds of non-resident owners to allow their properties to be sold for taxes.

If the district cannot prevent further floods because of lack of funds to do protective work at a proper time, it might as well be turned over to a receiver appointed by a federal court.

Pioneer Barber Dies
Funeral At Ft. Pierce

Jaeger Henry Tidwell, who resided in Pahokee since 1922 and for seven years was the proprietor of a barber shop, died at his home Tuesday morning about 9:30. The funeral was held yesterday morning at the Palmer Methodist church, where Rev. Jesse J. Jones, the pastor, officiated. Burial was made at Fort Pierce.

Mr. Tidwell had been in bad health for several months, suffering from gall stones, but his death was sudden, for he was at the barber shop the morning he died. He suffered an attack and treatment was procured for him and he was removed to his home.

Mr. Tidwell came to Pahokee from Fort Pierce to work in the town's first barber shop; he bought the shop soon thereafter and for a few years was the only barber on the eastern shore of Lake Okechobee. He was 41 years old.

He leaves a widow and six children. Winford, one of the boys, is in the army. He had three brothers, James Tidwell of Fort Pierce, F. E. of Alabaster and M. E. of Matthew, Ga., and three sisters, Mrs. Mattie Berube, Mrs. Velma Barrington and Mrs. Retta Ballard all residing in Alabama.

IN LIEU OF GOLF

The Editor's Own Column

In London, England, is a humorous paper, "Punch," which gave the famous "Advice to a Young Man Who Was Thinking of Getting Married: Don't."

That is the advice given by a highly respected friend who writes to me about the proposed daily edition of The Everglades News.

"Don't." An up-to-date paper, taking note of the fact that the population is too small to support a daily, to which the reply is that this territory has nearly 10,000 people.

I did not offer a prize for a name for the daily, but Dan Dorney of West Palm Beach wants to be paid for suggesting the name Daily Lake Okechobee News.

Dan has changed a lawyer to transmit the suggestion and my lawyer refers to his client as "the daily" is rejected by the boys in this office, they say Lake Okechobee is all wet. Well, so is the rest of the country, according to the Literary Digest poll.

Changing the subject: How do you like the new paper? Last week a group of men discussed a subject—men of widely varying opinions, but all with a common interest; the discussion was carried on in personal interviews, in the editorial office, and through telegraph messages and in letters, and it was interesting to observe it all. Some of the new facts and facts did not know the significance of their own facts; occasionally a second man would give the interpretation which a third man would seize upon to use ideas do not come "full blown" from the brain of Minerva"; more likely they are mosaics.

What's the use of having information drawn from experience and other sources if you don't use it? So, here goes: This is about the time when the...

In November of 1928, after the hurricane-flood and the election, I visited the Mississippi river valley and spent a month in the country between Memphis, Tenn., and Cairo, Ill., where I lived in a youth, a purpose of the trip (but not the sole purpose) being to see the changes and to see the people who lived there.

One day in Charleston, Mo., I hired a car and told the chauffeur to drive out on the Texas Bend road as far as he could. We started on a concrete road, which after a few miles terminated in a mud road and then came a graded dirt road. "This is as far as I dare risk the car," the driver said, pointing ahead. This did not surprise me, for I had been told that the road was impassable beyond that point. But I knew that hundreds of families lived on farms in the locality known as Texas Bend, so called from a big bend in Mississippi river. (Texas is the largest state and that is the largest bend known in Texas Bend.)

Everglades who go north on vacations in summer travel on good roads; they come back home and tell of the good roads they rode on and bewail the bad roads here, forgetting that while on their vacations in the north they kept to the good roads and never left the country roads. One might ride through Mississippi county, Missouri, on a broad concrete highway and not know there were localities in the country where the roads were impassable for several months in the year.

"How do those people out at Texas Bend live in winter if the road is so bad they can't get out?" I asked the driver of the car. The driver exploded: "They live in their supplies in the fall and once in a while during the winter a messenger fights his way out, anyway he can and comes in for the mail and for anything special that is needed."

That was the way the Texas Bend farmers did when I lived in Charleston way back before the Spanish-American war. But there was no difference; something new; "Most of them have radios," the driver said, "so they ain't lonely."

When I got back to Canal Point, remembering what the driver told me about the possessions of the Texas Bend farmers, I talked old Doc into selling me a radio set. B. Elliot at Ft. Pahokee was agent for the Crosley but he wasn't advertising the fact so I didn't know. He was advertising the Phillips so I got him to sell me a Phillips. Then I was as well fixed as a Texas Bend farmer. All this comes to my mind now when Canal Point and Pahokee are almost isolated by the high water which has made Canine highway impassable at 20-mile bend and put the "Belle Glade road in mud, fix. For one who can't get out on a rainy day or a stormy night the radio is a real pleasure. This is one of the things I mean, when I spoke making use of information drawn from experience.

As I took someone else's word for it, with benefit, others can take my word for some things, with benefit to themselves. At a low point the price of a Ford or Chevrolet car I put in a bath room and a Kolvinator and a radio, and these three fixtures have a value and a utility that will last longer after a car has been worn out. The best thing that happened in my larger number of years had to depend on Kohler hood lighting plants and batteries.

To persons who live on second floors an electric refrigerator is priceless; you do not have to make way for the kettles to get up stairs; you can be away from home any hour or all day or for two or three days—indeed, as long as you want—the temperature in the refrigerator is maintained without worry, if you are away from home, as to whether it is replaced. The electric refrigerator in its cost to one who does not use it, is a waste of money. In a glass of the juice and put the remainder of the juice away in the refrigerator; I use part of it as can of soup and have the remainder for another meal. There is no waste when I do not consume all of the contents of any food package. One person can economically serve himself a complete meal from soup to nuts, if he possesses an electric refrigerator. He can cook electrically, and he can have entertainment, solace for lack of companionship if he has friends who have gotten scared of a flood and high-balled it out to Georgia.

PEOPLE WE KNOW
R. Y. Patterson, transportation representative of the Southern Sugar Company, spent much of the week in West Palm Beach in conference on drainage matters.

Mrs. Lee Rawls, clerk in the Cash store at Belle Glade, visited relatives in Alachua. While she was away Mrs. Edna Sargent substituted for her.

A. E. Morgan of Canal Point last week visited in Moore Haven where he lived for several years.

GLADES HAS PLACE AT INTERNATIONAL ROTARY MEETING

When Rotarians from 62 nations met in Chicago Monday to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the first Rotary Club, the Pahokee club was represented along with the clubs from Alaska to Yugoslavia and the long list between them. The representative from the Everglades is L. L. (Lennie) Stuckey, a charter member of the Pahokee club, with the classification "truck farmer."

A five-day program featuring international friends and fellowships, along lines suggested by speakers of international prominence, from many different parts of the world, began Monday.

The informal opening of the convention at the Chicago Stadium consisted of a musical entertainment by the symphony orchestra, Imperial Welsh singers, Swedish choir band and a special chorus of 400 voices, followed by a breakfast featuring the general program covering all the activities of Rotary—community betterment programs, development of international friendships and study of better business practices.

Tuesday was business day, Wednesday community day, and Thursday and Friday international days.

Afternoon events were made up of informal assemblies. On Tuesday the Rotarians met in occupational groups. On Wednesday they discussed community problems, in groups of a few hundred each, divided according to the size of the clubs represented. Thursday afternoon the ways and means of extending international good will formed the topic for the assemblies.

Each afternoon had special entertainment for the visiting "Rotary Ann." There was a style show Monday in the new Merchandise Mart, the "world's largest building." Tuesday the ladies toured the city boulevards. Wednesday there was a boat ride on Lake Michigan and Thursday a concert by the Women's Symphony Orchestra.

The event which this convention commemorates occurred in 1905 on February 23, when Paul Harris, then starting the practice of law in Chicago, invited three of his friends to discuss the formation of a new kind of club which would primarily encourage fellowship and the extension of acquaintance. Membership would be restricted to one man of each distinct line of business. At subsequent meetings each brought along other friends and within a few weeks the club was definitely organized with officers and a membership of about 20. At first the meetings rotated each fortnight among the places of business and this led the founder to propose the name "Rotary" club. These fundamental principles still remain in all Rotary clubs. From time to time the Chicago

Rotary Club added other characteristics which also have become familiar in every club—singing, the use of first names, active participation in community welfare work, formation of student loan funds, and luncheon meetings. In these footsteps there are now following other service clubs with several hundred thousand members, emulating the example of cordial fellowship set by the quartet of Rotarians a quarter of a century ago.

Mr. McQuinn is moving to Okeechobee for the summer.

C. D. Denton, Russell Fisher, Clarence Lee and Mr. McQuinn went freshwater fishing Thursday afternoon in the Denton motor boat. While they were out on the water a terrific wind blew the bays into the canal and they thought it that they could not get through. Consequently they had to motor the boat back and make their way home via Chosen and Belle Glade overland. Fernan Denton becoming alarmed at their long absence took another boat and went out searching for them. He found their boat, and surmising that they had abandoned it to return by land, turned about and made his way home, arriving shortly before the fishing party was at about 10 p. m.

100 YEARS SERVICE FAIRBANKS-MORSE

The Fairbanks-Morse Company, which is known to everyone in the Everglades because of the use of that company's pumps in the drainage districts' pumping plants, this year celebrates its one hundred anniversary and is one of the few firms in the United States that has had a continuous existence for a century.

The company owes its origin to the invention of a weighing device by Thaddeus Fairbanks in Vermont; his two brothers, Joseph P. and Erasmus, went into partnership with him shortly after his patent was granted, Erasmus becoming the president of the company.

The business remained in the Fairbanks family until 1877, when the company was enlarged through the efforts of Charles Homer Morse, who as a boy had apprenticed himself in the Vermont scale works for 50 years.

It was through Morse's influence that the company entered into wider fields, with factories in the middle west. Morse died in 1921 at the age of 88.

The Fairbanks-Morse Company manufactures the screw pump designed by J. M. Wood of New Orleans and known as the Wood screw pump, the Fairbanks-Morse engine and the pump making a complete installation for drainage purposes.

One of the features of the meetings was the use of motion pictures of the "still" type in presenting the subject of each session. All five films were used.

The most novel of these was the one entitled "Mr. Lippittian Sells a Chevrolet." It depicted a salesman explaining the features of the car to a prospect. Both figures were so reduced in size and the car's parts so enlarged that the men crawled into the cylinders to inspect the pistons; into the transmission and differential to discuss the gears; jumped, in diving suits, into the oil-filled crankcase to examine the crankcase, oil pump and bearings; and perched on the instrument panel controls, spark plugs, steering wheel, shifting lever and other parts while these were being explained to the purchaser. Many dealers have asked permission to retain the film for future use in training salesmen and illustrating the car's advantages to prospective buyers.

So successful were the meetings that Chevrolet central offices are planning to repeat the series.

considering making the "school" an annual affair. In practically every instance Chevrolet dealers reported their complete sales personnel in attendance at each meeting, and in addition the office and service staffs requested and were given permission to attend.

The thought behind the school was the belief that most automobile businessmen possess only the theory of selling and usually are forced to undergo long experience and overcome many difficulties before they are able to furnish prospective buyers with a fully satisfactory exposition of the car's features.

Pupils' Boxes Bring Red Cross Greetings

Members of the Junior Red Cross at Okeechobee were not satisfied with having sent boxes of fruits and vegetables to the veterans hospital at Key West and elsewhere, they felt it their part to help in service abroad, so they have been Christmas cards and cartons which were sent out by the senior Red Cross.

Acknowledgments were received last week from the veterans hospital at Key West, in surprise of the Okeechobee juniors, from six school children in Baranovsky, Petrovo Selo, Jugoslavia.

Mrs. W. H. Hutt, Jr., reporting the circumstance to the Okeechobee News, commends the penmanship of the juniors in Jugoslavia and is holding the letters to exhibit them to the Okeechobee juniors when school opens in the fall.

Inspired by F. A. Ruhl, publisher of the Okeechobee News, organizers of that town met and organized a chamber of commerce with E. W. Smith president, N. Zelmanovic vice president, H. L. Chaney treasurer, Mr. Ruhl secretary. Other members of the board of directors are L. F. Scharf, Leo Greengraber, H. C. Steele, Harry Lamb, G. C. Durand, Ed Watford and J. H. McCraney.

A committee was appointed to put a float in the West Palm Beach festival July 4.

Furniture used by a chamber of commerce during the boom will be retrieved and used and an office opened in Southland hotel.

New Service Policy

wins nationwide approval

On January 1st of this year, the Chevrolet Motor Company announced a new service policy—the most liberal ever offered in connection with a low-priced automobile.

Immediately it was greeted with enthusiasm by Chevrolet buyers everywhere—because its many unusual features materially add to the economy and lasting satisfaction of Chevrolet ownership. Briefly, it provides——for free inspection and adjustment at the 500-mile mark, and free inspections every 1000 miles thereafter.

—for free replacement of any material—including both parts and labor—that may prove defective, within the terms of the standard warranty.

—that this replacement will be carried out by any Chevrolet dealer in the United States—regardless of where the owner may have traveled during the warranty period.

Backing this policy is one of the largest service organizations in the automotive industry—consisting of authorized Chevrolet dealer service stations in the United States alone. Come in! Learn all the other reasons why it's wise to choose a Chevrolet Six!
